OF $1,400 PER DAY

Will keep One Hundred Teams Busy during the Harvest of 3,400
Acres of Wheat.

"Daredevil Slim" Spaiu, Who Leaps From Airplanes, Tells
Story of a Life of Hazards

TULSA CITY, Kan., July 5.—The employment of 100 farmhands and a daily expense of $1,400 a day, is included in the budget Allen Webber has made out for preparation for harvesting his 3,400 acres of wheat northeast of Dodge City. He expects to complete the job in about 15 days, if the weather is favorable, which would mean a total expense of $21,000.

In preparation for handling the harvest Mr. Webber recently came to town and purchased eight large farm wagons. These were loaded with horses and each drawn by four horses were driven to his farm. He said he would start 10 headers on an acre score of barges which would cover about 150 teams busy during the harvest period.

Mr. Webber said he will use the eight new wagons to haul the grain at a distance of between four and five miles. He figures that should his crop yield 20 bushels to the acre it would take 57 trips by wagon to carry the grain to town. He figures on a ton of 66,000 bushels, which, at 20 bushels, would yield $136,000. He says he had insured his crop against failure and had $50,000. It will take four weeks to feed the harvest hands on the Webber farm. The farmer purchased $1,000 worth of groceries on his recent trip to the city, which, he said, "would do for 3 weeks." He owns two threshing outfits which he will start to operate as soon as the cutting begins.

Living Picture of Remote Past Presented by Habits of People of Sardinia

ROME, July 5.—Relics of biblical pastoral life, plowing by oxen, reaping by the most primitive implements and other occupations of the primitive peoples of antiquity remain the manner of living today in Sardinia, according to Alfred P. Dennis, commercial attaché of the United States embassy here, who has just returned from the island after making an exhaustive study into the trade possibilities of it.

Sardinians present a living picture of the remote past which has been stereotyped and passed down from antiquity," said Doctor Dennis in the Associated Press correspondence. "Water wheels with earthen buckets, wooden yokes drawn by oxen, the scythe is still in use in reaping the fields—nomadic occupations unchanged since the days of the Aryan dispersion—tribal costumes as gay and grotesque as the puppets of the medieval pageants—all reproduce in the veriest similitude the archaic life of by-gone ages."

She Wants to Know.

"How's the old chowder, Wombat?" she was his custom.

"Who's this Trix you fellows are always talking about?" demanded Miss Wombat.

Ruthless jokers of essential parts of clothes have been invented in England to give girls who are learning to be milkmaids practical instruction.

These prices speak for themselves—the woolens are the finest grade fabrics—the suits will be tailored as you want them.

The women in Brazil have not equal suffrage, but they have an equity with the men of their country which is not enjoyed by their North American sisters.

All Brazilian husbands are expected to wear their wedding rings unconventionally, as their wives do, and generally they do so. The ring is a plain gold band, the same as that worn by the wives in the United States.

The women in Brazil unanimously are of the opinion that this is about the last word in equality and it is doubtful if they would exchange the custom for the right to go to the polls.
